Cathedral Grove in Mac-Millan Park, 20 miles west of Parksville, is being studied to ensure the giant trees continue to live for at least another 300 years.

While provincial park of-ficials say there is no cause for alarm yet, some foresfers fear that logging around the small park and the tramping of thousands of tourists may bring the grove's early death.

Some biologists contend the cutting of trees around the 33-acre park is affecting the ecology of the area and exposing the 800-year-old giants to

Residents Fail to Halt Townhouse Rezoning

Times Staff

A two-hour verbal onslaught by residents of single-family homes in the Summit-Jackson day in defeating rezoning approval for a 38-unit townhouse development planned by the Wilderness Park Co-operative Housing Association.

Victoria city council re-zoned the rocky, three-acre site after a frequently noisy and occasionally emotional public hearing, at which oppo-nents of the proposed development greatly outnumbered supporters. Only Ald. Sam Bawlf and Ald. Clyde Savage voted against the bylaw. Several members of council, including Mayor Peter Pollen, indicated the time had come for the city to stop paying lip service to solving the family housing crisis.

They said they found the plans for the housing complex esthetically acceptable, and it was a situation where the needs of the total community outweighed the possibly groundless fears of dwellers in surrounding single-family

Those fears and objections, repeated as speaker after speaker took the microphone, were generally that the project's density would be overly high at nearly 19 units to the acre; that it would lower the values of adjoining es-tablished homes; inundate the neighborhood with children; and create parking problems and traffic hazards. 'Several objectors argued that the only reason they had chosen to live in the area was to enjoy its attractive semirural atmosphere, and appealed to council to incorporate the three-acre property in the nearby Smith's Hill

Stalemate on the Waterfront

The port of Vancouver is shut down - again. Its record is so bad that this latest strike by west coast longshoremen seems to have drawn no more than a collective yawn from the public. Shutdowns have become such commonplace occurences - they total almost a year out of the last 11 years and freighters bobbing on English Bay waiting for berths inside the harbor seem perfectly natural in their unfamiliar anchorages.

More's the pity that more people don't realize the tremendous importance of the port facilities in Vancouver, and the alarm with which observers of the shipping scene greet the port's slipping reputation. The last shutdown didn't kill Vancouver, and the next one won't be the coup de grace either, but slowly, little signs point to a downhill slide.

The People's Republic of China has asked that more of the grain it buys from Canada be shipped through the Lakehead instead of Vancouver. Japan has announced that it will look elsewhere to replace the Canadian grain from which was made 70 per cent of the bread in its nationwide school lunch

Last year, total tonnage moved through Vancouver fell 200,000 tons to 41.9 million tons, while grain shipments were only 5,319,-000 tons compared with 8,132,000 tons the year before.

A study by a university of B.C. of the more than 60,000 containers expert in transportation points out that Seattle, Vancouver's competitor in shipping, isn't any cheaper for container shipping lines — the American city simply offers better service, faster handling, more reliable operation. It has several terminals with the specialized container cranes, compared with a single dock in Vancouver.

Vancouver port manager Fred Spoke points out that port operations there have a $1 billion impact on the Greater Vancouver area, with some 12,000 people employed directly in port jobs with another 8,000 indirectly related jobs. The wage bill alone for these employées amounts to about $250 million a year.

Money isn't the issue in the current deadlock which has closed Canada's west coast to shipping. Both sides agree the key to the dispute is job security and a question of union jurisdiction whether the Teamsters or the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union shall have the right to "destuff" containers.

In U.S. west coast ports, the ILWU allows the 20-foot loaded containers to be transported to inland warehouses, where members of the Teamsters' union do the stuffing and unloading, but the longshoremen in B.C. object to the same thing here because it fears jobs will be lost.

Apparently only three per cent annually are subject to this rule. But the Maritime Employers' Association says the work is the most labor-intensive on the waterfront and adds a considerable amount to ordinary shipping costs and is discouraging expansion of trade through Vancouver.

The MEA has proposed a compromise which seems reasonable enough at first glance. For one year containers would move freely across the docks to inland warehouses to be destuffed, while an independent expert would be appointed by the union and stevedoring companies to prepare a study of the effects of such a change. The union has agreed to the choice of an arbitrator, but it wants the study conducted before any container traffic is altered. The MEA has offered to return to the existing method of operation if the arbitrator says so, but suggests there will be even more work with the change because of greater efficiency.

Considering that both sides are so close on this crucial issue, and there seem to be no other disputed points in the current round of bargaining, surely both sides could agree to try one more time to resolve their disagreement and get the grain, containers, automobiles, bulk cargoes and everything else upon which the economy of western Canada depends, moving manner in which Education Minister Eileen Dailly appears to be treating the very serious matter of the existence of teacher blacklists in British Columbia is disturbing, and should be of general concern to everyone, teacher and nonteacher alike. If a department of government can draw up blacklists for one profession or group of citizens, then who knows how many other such lists exist, inside or outside of government?

Need Some Blacklist Answers

Understandably, Dailly has not been eager to talk about such a repugnant matter, but this deserves the fullest possible airing.

From the information out in the open now, made public by the minister, the B.C. Teachers' Federation, Liberal Leader David Anderson and others who may have been personally affected by blacklisting, it seems there may have been two or three blacklists, and a "blacklist hotline" telephone number somewhere in the education department in Victoria which school principals and district superintendents could ring up for information on teach-

As Dailly made clear, there exists the need for legitimate evaluation of teachers and their classroom per-

The casual, confused, offhand formance, but the question of whether the department's rating and reporting service has been abused by blacklisting of teachers for reasons totally unrelated to teaching ability has not so far been answered satisfactorily.

For example, New Democratic Party MLA Harold Steves is certain he was put on a blacklist about five years ago, a list "usually used against teachers with a differing political philosophy from the government of the day" or against those who tried to implement educational changes. Sound familiar?

Ask John Young, the former principal of Campbell River high school who now runs an automobile parts store in Victoria. "I have always believed, just on the basis of my own experience, there was an unofficial blacklist." Young tried several times to get jobs in education in B.C., at various levels but was unsuccessful in each attempt, despite universal recognition of his capabilities.

Ask Stanley Knight, the head of research and development in Dailly's department who was fired unceremoniously two months ago for alleged "unco-operativeness." He's applied to seven jobs in B.C., but hasn't had a good response out of any of them, although out of province prospects have been enthusi-

Ask BCTF president James McFarlan. According to him, a copy of a blacklist with some 46 names on it came into the federation's possession almost a year ago. He followed up 10 of the names on it - six were teaching, and had ratings of good to excellent. A question for the minister - why then were their names on the list of allegedly undesirable

The minister says the "terminology of a blacklist is rather unfortunate." Supposedly those blacklisted found it rather unfortunate as well, those blacklisted without cause except they were perhaps student radicals in their university days, or were supporters of educational change, or disagreed with a local school board over teaching methods or were election candidates for a party not in power at the time. Or perhaps, crime of crimes, they made their beefs public. It should be familiar to a onceobscure social worker, now a provincial premier, who was fired from his government post 15 years ago for criticizing the provincial prison

Except for the Kafkaesque Frony of the non-publication of a report which itself recommends that more information be made public, there is nothing in the least unusual in the fate of the Wall report. It lies on the far side of the dividing line between "good government" and 'good for the government." Most things do. Two other examples to make my

Nothing Confidential

 A year ago Mitchell Sharp, then external affairs minister and now privy council president, refused a demand by MPs for copies of a consultant's report on the Canadian International Development Agency. "It is a study of a con fidential nature," Sharp said to MPs when the matter came up again a couple of weeks ago. I happen to know the con tents of this study, by Price-Waterhouse. Nothing in it is confidential. No one is mentioned by name, none of those interviewed still work for CIDA, their identities, deliberately, are impossible to iden-

Often the replies are as uninformative as possible, or are supplied late to blunt a and prices asked last Oct. 25 by Creditiste MP Adrien Lambert. It took me one phone call 13 minutes long to get the information. Lambert, nearly five months later, is still waiting for an answer.

These incidents make up the real world of Ottawa. Governments these days do publish more documents than not to inform but to persuade - the blind leading the blind. The green paper on immigration is an example - after an earlier draft was leaked, the report was endlessly re-written and re-worked to muffle controversy and to defuse criticism. No government, willingly, will surrender information that may embarrass life more complicated. To expect other-

GORDON ROBERTSON . . for government eyes only

All this is happening while a parliamentary committee studies Sharp's new guidelines for making available government documents to parliament. MPs and enators, anxious to be both progress and responsible, are trying to decide whether a comma—shifted here or a word added there to the guidelines might drag more documents into the public's

Only twice has the parliamentary inquiry touched reality. The "sheer laziness" of reporters, said Senator Paul Godfrey, was as much to blame for of government. Godfrey - to bite the hands of some of my colleagues - is absolutely right. There's a great deal of information in this town-not secret but openly available - that never is looked at let alone reported because of lazy reporters and undemanding editors. I must add, and so bite the hands of my readers also, that the public's preference for news - as-theatre rather than newsas-detailed-fact, doesn't encourage investigative journalism.

The other moment of reality was provided by Carleton University political scientist Donald Rowat. He called the new guidelines "a tiny, faltering step that is not going to change the attitudes of the civil service very much. It has to be a gigantic, significant reform so that they know the situation has changed."

Swedish Model

At best, the new guidelines may get a quicker answer to Lambert. They will do nothing, and this alone matters, to stop Sharp and Robertson from sticking a confidential tag on any documents which they judge, entirely in private of course, might enbarass the government.

Rowat, as many others have done. proposed the Swedish model. There all government documents automatically are made public unless justified for reasons such as national security, personal matters etc. "You're talking about a revolution, not reform," said Sharp when I asked him about this

A far better revolutionary model than Oregon, ex-governor Tom McCall followed some quixotic habits - reporters attended his daily staff meetings, were invited by law to any assembly, cocktail parties included, at which administrative decisions might be made, and could lis-

Mundane It Is Not

Paul Moss's article on the B.C. Institute for Analysis of Economic Policy was excellent and accurate, as far as it went, with one exception. We do not consider our own finances to be "mundane" and we keep careful track of every penny we spend. What I did say is that our expenditures are running well below our income during this interim initial period, so that we have not had to press the department of finance for an exact statement of the income of the fund on which we live. Now that a board of directors has been appointed, we will be bumping our heads against the ceiling on our budget quite soon. I am sure.

But the main point is that Mr. Moss's reportage was of very high quality, Mason Gaffney, Executive Director, 3771

. . . Sick and Tired

We have a vast complex of federal and provincial civil servants who form our governments. However it is the union leaders who rule Canada as they can paralyze the country any time they so desire. Fear of the unions by government was recently expressed by the B.C. government who, via B.C. Hydro, placed a printing contract with Colonist Printers at double the price of a competing local firm who are not unionized.

Hydro clearly announced that they gave the contract because the Colonist.

workers are underpaid - wages must go up. This is what causes inflation wages increase resulting in increasing cost of all products. The product price does not inflate unless the cost of production inflates.

The striker fails to see that in the end, after many weeks of being just a picketer, receiving up to $35 per week, he may receive a higher wage but much of this will be dissipated in the increasing prices he and his family have to pay for everyday purchases, food, taxes etc And it will take him a long time to recover from his higher wages what he has lost whilst on strike. Their stupidity is understandable because they do not think ahead - in fact, they do not think. Their leaders do their thinking for them and all they see on the horizon is a larger and larger dollar sign.

It is my understanding, on which I am willing to be corrected, that many strike votes are taken by a show of hands and not by secret ballot, If such is the case this procedure should be stopped by legislation. By a show of hands, the man who does not wish to strike is afraid of indicating his intention for fear of personal reprisals against himself. Is there any one of our union guarantee that strike votes are by secret

It is apparent that those of us who live in Victoria are sick and tired of strikers, pickets, wage demands and the like and the feeling may be "Let them stay on strike as long as they wish and a way will be found to defeat them." In the end sheer finances will call a "back to work" sign. Should we all be intimidated towards an increasing cost of living so that the union leaders maintain very high standard? - Thinking

Next thing we'll have a Ku Klux Klan operating in Victoria. If the local police are unable to protect all the citizens of a community then the police need help, but to unilaterally form a vigilante group is quite out of place in Canada. This kind of confrontation can only escalate into more violence. Communist methods have nothing to recommend them, terror tactics for any reason are only likely to further polarize the people involved.

I think our system can handle such trouble as any minority group may have and if it can't then is the time to elect another government. I doubt if the communists would get in. Certainly most sensible people won't be impressed by this display of wild west law. - H. F. Leggett, 948 Lyall.

Barbaric Slaughter

It is with disgust and shame I read that the Canadian government is once more to sanction the annual seal hunt in waters off the Gulf of St. Lawrence, in co-operation with the Norwegians.

Cleveland Amory, the noted writer and president of the Fund for Animals, in his book Man Kind? quotes some graphic eyewitness accounts of the utterbarbaric, bestial cruelty involved in the annual slaughter of the baby seals who are clubbed to death, and, it seems entirely clear, are at times skinned alive in the presence of the mother seals.

It is very difficult to understand how a supposedly civilized nation can tolerate this ghastly "industry." Surely to God i is time this bloody business was abolished completely and for all time?

If every responsible citizen would write or wire his member of parliament concerning this - and also the use of the murderously-cruel leghold trap, possibly T. Jamieson Quirk, Major (Ret.) Van-

Cruel Traps

Canada's national emblem the beaver? Canada's shame instead! Nearly half a million beaver were trapped last year in Canada. Mainly by the legby the foct or leg. They then must wait their slow cruel death by starvation, freezing, etc. Sometimes the pain drives them to chew or wring off their leg to escape. Other times they are drowned, trapped by the leg in a slide-lock device which stops them from surfacing for life-

If we are considering using the beaver as our Canadian emblem then let us first deserve him. We have inflicted this tearing agony upon this noble animal long enough

Let us indeed make the industrious wonderful beaver Canada's emblem and at the same time have the decency to get rid of the cruel leg-hold trap that has for so long doomed him to such an unnecessary inhumane and painful death. He has given us so much. Let's at least let him have a humane death - Mrs. Bunty Clements, President, Association for the Protection of Fur-Bearing Animals, 1316 12th Avenue, Vancouver.

60 YEARS AGO

There is a strange rumor current in the city today that Sir Richard McBride has decided to resign and leave his lieutenant, Attorney-General W. J. Bowser, to form a cabinet with which to go to the country. Mr. Bowser has been the real head of the government for some time, though not nominally its head. Meanwhile, the Liberal campaign for the expected election has begun in earnest, successful meetings are being held and men nominated who have the respect and confidence of the electorate in the various constituencies.

Alf's Half-Million Dollar Job-Without-a-Job

If you wish to know the clumsiness of this NDP government, with all its good intentions, you must understand the situation of Alf Nunweiler. If this party somehow manages to commit suicide in only one term, it will be due to such bland earelessness.

Alf Nunweiler is the former CNR train dispatcher who on June 26 last year was named minister-without-portfolio in the Barrett government. He is 43, a former alderman and school trustee in Prince

"Minister-withoutportfolio," of course, is one of the accepted amusements of parliamentary democracy. It means a job thout-a-job. A minister-without-portfolio is appointed for all the wrong reasons: to quieten an obstreperous backbencher whose demands on cabinet recognition have become unanswerable; a sop to certain interests: a carrot to dangle

The NDP used to heap derisive abuse on Social Credit for tolerating ministers-without-portfolio: c a b i n e t ministers who had no work to do. But, swallowing the hypocrisy with a straight face, the Barrett government did the very same thing to Alf Nunweiler — purely to satisfy geographical demands. The northern half of the province was Highways Minister Gra ham Lea, from Prince Ruto give Prince George a voice.

Mr. Nunweiler, as mentioned, was elevated last June. In less than a month, he had found his first executive assistant in the north. Stephen Wood, a Prince George lawyer. On Oct. 1, he found his Victoria executive assistant, Sharon Simons, formerly an aide to the Saskatchewan minister of agriculture. Her salary at that time was announced as $17,628. Now, there are two possibil ities here. One is that Alf Nunweiler has the most swolen, grandiose ambitions since Napoleon. and that he actually plans to build that $402,657 fact he has no clear duties other than to dabble in the "northern affairs" segment of the highways department, the B.C. The other, as some people suspect, is that Mr. Barrett is being as phoney in his budgeting, in a reverse way, as W.A.C. Bennett was in his. Some suspect that Mr. Barrett, in his risky prediction balance his expenditures for the coming year, has purposely padded his budget with wild items that he has no intention of spending money on.

If so, Mr. Nunweiler is being played for a fool. Either way, he does not come out looking very bright. Mr. Nunweiler, advertising more experts than he has chairs, is stuck with that $402,657. To spend it. If he doesn't, he

Confessions of a Killer

The first life I remember taking belonged to a very young chicken. It was trailing its mother under a wide-mesh wire fence I happened to be descending and I stepped on it. It was a shattering experience. I was restored only after earnest maternal assurances that it was a dead does without material assurances. a deed done without malice or intent and didn't matter anyhow because it was only a chicken.

I have killed wantonly ever since, y bag includes flies, worms, but-flies, rabbits, birds, fish, gnats, cockroaches, ants, lobsters, crabs, a snake, a rat, Japanese beetles thrips, slugs, a turtle, wasps, bees, lightning bugs, ticks, caterpillars and sundry-

As a lifelong dispenser of death to living things, I have been very small shakes, as this shabby catalogue attests. I have not personally killed a human, although there was a time from 1943 to 1945 when I thirsted to do so.

In an advanced economy of course, one pays others to kill for him, and here my assault on life has been impressive. Vast sums have been spent-sometimes happily, sometimes grudg-ingly, to undo life in steers, calves, lambs, chickens, turkeys, ducks, shrimp, fish, human inhabitants of alien countries, and insects, rodents and bacteria both at home and abroad.

For a long time I helped to pay a hangman who killed people in my own community and I still gladly help to pay policemen who, I assume, are prepared to. In brief, I have been a lifelong, ac-tive and sometimes enthusiastic enemy

I do not go on about myself at this length for the purpose of boasting. To the contrary. The performance record cited here is set down because it is so ordinary, so undifferent from that of

is working to have human fetuses placed on the exempt list and the peo-ple who are upset about the army's big blackbird kill in Kentucky want start-ings, grackles and red-winged blackbirds exempted. You can be on the blackbirds' side without having to be for fetuses, and you can be a Right-to-Lifer and still support the blackbird kill, because neither faction is so purely dedicated to the sanctity of life that it won't concede the fitness of killing the kinds of life that don't interest it very

There are at least 12 widely accepted reasons for killing, although some are more controversial than others. The most hotly debated are whether it is all right to kill humans (1) for criminal justice and (2) for human uplift, as guerrilla terrorists, for example, kill them to build what the killers believe will be a better world for mankind.

Killing for self-preservation is gener

In a world as machine-ridden as ours, goes the argument, a certain percentage of people are bound to be killed in accidents, and if you have the bad luck to be caught in one you should not expect anyone to have a bad conscience about it because it was a statistical in-

All five reasons, of course, also apply to life other than the human. Killing my chicken was permissible as causes. Mosquitoes are killed for human uplift—to make Panama a better place for humanity.

Killing of beasts is all right for food, although not all beasts in all countries. Lassie might be safe in starving America, but not in China, and Bossie might be safe in India, but not in America.

Killing for sport is okay, although again we have cultural differences. Hemingway could be admired in America while slaughtering wild beasts in Africa, but not while applauding the killing of a bull in the ring at Madrid. Killing big fish is a token of manhood and is thought to promote health and mental stability. Killing for knowledge is more controversial, but widely approved. Remember dissecting the frog in highschool biology? Killing for profit, okay, as the whales and furbearing beasts have observed.

Killing for mercy is so widely approved in the case of stricken animals that one wonders why it is so abhorred in the human instance. Deer hunting is commonly justified as an act of mercy transcending pure sport, on grounds that it thins out herds and prevents starvation. Humans have managed to the starvation problem. So far.

And, of course, very few quibble about the killing of pests (except black-birds) which eat the garden and mangle the roses. Finally, it is all right to kill forms of life that are too trival to matter, so we squash the bug on the screen simply because it is there.

A long exposition of the obvious here? Yes indeed. Man lives, as the animal kingdom does, by killing, and when he talks about the sancity of life he doesn't really mean life at all, but

to start enjoying free time, rather than and upkeep. Then too, the time for buying was good; interest rates were down, values continued to rise, and Bayshore Realty, the people behind LORD SELKIRK ESTATES took our home in trade. We paid a reasonable price for our frankly luxurious 2-bedroom condominium; Lord Selkirk prices are from $40,900 to $46,900, and lots of exceptional things are included in that price. Like new appliances and wall-to-wall carpeting, sauna and whirlpool and much more. At Lord Selkirk, we're finding living easy and enjoyable, and the part we like best is the no maintenance, no gardening, no painting or fixing. And that's why we bought a condominium. Actually, we didn't just buy a condominium: we bought a new home, at LORD SELKIRK ESTATES, and there is a difference.

Tenant Policies Cancelled-MLA

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. is cancelling tenants' general insurance, policies taken out by young single people, a Socred MLA charged in the legislature Thursday.

Bob McClelland (SC-Langley) said the practice is now ICBC policy, despite the fact Transport Minister Bob Strachan denied it in the legislature last week.

McClelland cited two cases of young, unemployed people who have had their tenants' insurance policies cancelled and he read out another letter from ICBC rejecting applica-tion for a new policy because

A problem greatly disturbing people in B.C. is juvenile delinquency and instead of creating facilities to deal with those offenders, the government is eliminating institutions, said McClelland.

There is great concern in the community about the lack of resources for hard core young offenders, he said, and all the efforts of social workers will not do anything

"We don't call the shots, but we do feel there has to be adequate care.

"If the paramedic people decide to remove services, then the admitting doctor will have to take more responsibility for patient care."

"I don't think it's necessary for hospitals to shut down," said the health minister.

He said his department is re-examining the "desperately bad principle" of doctors who are in conflict of interest by being on boards of directors of private hospitals. It's a situation that mixes the profit motive with the health care of people in the province, Cocke said.

He said his department will meet the B.C. Medical Associ-ation and the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons to discuss the issue and discus-sions are scheduled for April.

The thrust of the govern-ment, he said, is that all hospitals in the province should be publicly owned.

He said his department is also looking at medical la-boratories and pharmacies. "I've asked that satellite labs be looked at," he said, adding he is somewhat sympathetic towards owners of the laboratories. "They were the ones that agreed to fi-nance them. ### Socred 'Inertia' Costly

Inertia of the former Social Credit government lost B.C. large amounts of federal money to support training and apprentice programs in the province, Labor Minister Bill King said Thursday.

Dockers' Strike

By VICTOR MACKIE

OTTAWA — Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Wheat Board, told the Com-mons Thursday it was possible that Canada is losing sales of wheat to the United States because of strikes halting grain deliveries.

He was questioned in the house by Don Mazankowski (PC-Vegreville) who asked if the minister was aware that the Japanese had been forced to purchase emergency wheat supplies from the United States.

Mazankowski said the Japanese had to turn to the U.S. to replenish their exhausted sup-plies of wheat because the Wheat Board's shipments overseas were delayed due tolabour strife.

"Can the minister advise whether or not any contracts have been cancelled or sales to Japan lost, or lost to any other country as a result of the current strike?" asked the

Lang said the particular purchase of wheat by Japan in the U.S. cannot be directly and easily attributed to any

He added, "But I certainly would not deny the possibility of what the member said."

Earlier his week G. N. Vogel, chief commissioner of the Wheat Board confirmed that the Japanese have pur-chased five cargoes of wheat from the U.S. He said it had to make the emergency pur-chases of grain because its wheat stocks were running Vogel said this would mean that Canada will eventually lose sales of wheat that could have been made to Japan.

Five of the vessels tied up a Vancouver should have cleared that port for Japan by the end of January, he said. S. J. Korchinski (PC— Mackenzie) wondered how long it would take Canada to catch up on its contracts for supplying wheat when the strikes were finally settled.

They said in interviews this an company that has been hurt by such boycotts and added that they appear to have little effect.

The matter had not been broached by either side in talks with such countries as Saudi Arabia and Iraq over improved trade, although Saudi Arabia had an extensive boycott list with Canadian names on it.

They said that in some ways the lists make little sense and that one 1969 Saudi Arabian boycott list seemed little else than "overkill on Seagrams" distillers.

The idea of the boycotts is to deny Arab markets to com-panies considered friendly with Israel. The major boy-cott group is based in Damas-cus, Syria, and held wellpublicized meetings recently.

A spokesman for the Arab Information Office here,

He said his office issued a strongly-worded statement which defended the boycott as a legitim at e self-defence against aggression that was being used for the sake of peace and justice.

Canadian officials say that when asked, Arab spokesmen never can give the names of firms under the boycott.

It is known that Ford, Coca-Cola, RCA, General Tire, Mutual Life, Xerox, Zenith and thousands of others are on one boycott list or another.

A 25-foot Saudi Arabian list made public in Washington recently mentioned the Bronfman family of Seagrams Dis-tillers and Simpsons-Sears department store.

The estimated 1975-76 spending of $1.141 billion and revenue of $1.144 billion marked increase of 26.7 per cent from the respective $899 million and $901 million in the previous budget.

In addition to the $100 tax cut and $20-a-month pension supplement, to cost $27 million and $7 million respectively, Saskatchewan residents got exemptions from the five-per-cent sales tax for restagrant meals and reading materials, increased exemptions from succession duties, and a $40 increase in the $160 householder grant.

In announcing the pension supplements, Robbins said that "This government will guarantee every resident of Saskatchewan 65 years of age or over an income level of $224 per month for single persons and $425 per month for married couples."

The guarantee would be achieved by adding $20 and $36 respectively to the amounts elderly persons and couples can receive from the federal government if they have no additional income.

OTTAWA (FP) — Finance Minister John Turner warned Wednesday that the current level of wage settlements in Canada could lead the country to hard economic times.

Turner said the present in-flation, rate is unsatisfactory despite the fact that an easing in wholesale prices and com-modity prices will work its way through the economy.

"The most disturbing fea-ture of the current situation," he added, "is the cost in-creases ... reflecting wage settlements now running at more than twice the rate of settlements in the United States.

The end result will be a community plan for the so-called "western community," the electoral areas of Col-wood, Langford and MetchoRegional planner Peter Hammer today defined a community plan as a strategy which designates future use of the land, how it will be serviced with transport, water, sewerage and power and how these will be paid for.

Community plans will be prepared for all parts of the Capital district over the next

For a plan to stand up in the future requires a contribu-tion from residents, Hammer told the audience. Colwood, Langford and Metchosin, with a current population of about 20,000 and covering 90 square miles, have been earmarked for potential urban develop-ment on the recently approved overall-regional plan.

The population is expected climb from 20,000 to about 60,000 by 1996.

With large parts, of the Saanich Perinsula included in the agricultural land reserve and the same holding true for much of Metchosin, the plan-ners see a population shift affecting Colwood and Langford particularly.

Hammer said the idea is to develop a sort of satellite core in a way which doesn't destroy the character and natural environment of the area.

How important is rapid transit, bearing in mind such a system can cost $1 million a mile or more?

While most of the audience just listened, some of their dislikes did surface. The first phase in the planning process is to define the basic directions of growth and the amount to be permitted.

To whom it may concern: And Annis Stukus, who now is in radio in Vancouver, has popped up again, this time as one of the PR types for the Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League. Another radioman, John Sykes, is also involved. GM Denny Veitch, too, has successfully made the transformation from football to soccer, it seems. At least he is honest enough to admit that soccer really wasn't his game until he became involved with Herb Capozzi and the Whitecaps. But now he's sold, and he thinks there really may be an avenue for the indoor game especially in the winter month if facilities can be found.

And what a difference a few years makes. Brian Hughes, former coach of the ill-fated Victoria Royals of the Western Canada Soccer League, was recalling the time when he brought Trini Douglas here from Trinidad to play in Victoria. Well, that Trini Douglas now is Tony Douglas of the Los Angeles Aztecs and still a key player with the Trinidad national team. And whatever happened to Jim Irvine, the sponsor of the Royals? He had a beautiful dream for soccer but may have been a little ahead of his time. At any rate the Whihave been a little ahead of his time. the 1943 Gremlins, Canadian champs, there was another reason he recalled the past so vividiy. One of the regular stopping-off points in those times for athletes was the Whytes, where Mom Whyte poured the tea (that's right—tea) and hubby "Rollie" assisted at the urn. It was always open was a great person," he said. "And once when I was there I had a pain and Mom gave me a hot water bottle and put me to bed. That turned out table a mistake, however, because I had appendicitis, and that's why it sticks in my memory."

Many others could say the same for Mom Whyte. Hers was a Many others could say the same for Mom Whyte. Hers was a home away from home. Oops, and how about that! Pat Tyr-rell was one of the trainers of the Gremlins way back then.

And so the big fishfest will return this summer on Aug. 9-10, with a few new ideas, a new Island chairman, Jerry McKay, who replaces Vancouver's Mike Smith; the same weigh-in station, Anchor Marina and under the direction of weigh-master Bill Bashford. "We think we will do very well," said Doug. "So stay tuned."

This is not to suggest that high school basketball teams sometimes in the past played to lose in their playoffs, which this season lead to the B.C. championships in Vancouver next week, but that possibility was the prime reason why the draw for this year's provincial tournament wasn't made until the preliminary rounds had been completed. Meanwhile, it was generally overlooked by most observers at Saturday's final here between Oak Bay Bays and Mt. Douglas Rams, but one of the heroes of the piece for Oak Bay just had to be Steve Leung. He came off the bench to spark the Bays, ran in three straight baskets, finished with 11 points, and gave the Mt. Doug team fits with his dribbling and bringing the ball up the court.

Otherwise, if Dee Andros, the Oregon State Football coach, wasn't one of the surprise hits of the annual Sportsman's Dinner, then Jack Short was. KAMLOOPS CHIEFS

SATURDAY, MARCH 15 AT MEMORIAL ARENA

8:30 P.M.

The Kamloops Chiefs and the Victoria Cougars are feuding. And there are several reasons. One reason may go back a few years. When Harvey Roy coached Edmonton and Pat Ginell coached Flin Flon, the Bombers and Oil Kings were not exactly friends. These clubs also had battles in the exhibition schedule prior to the season. But the main reason is probably this. The Cougars have won three out of three games in Kamloops. Then the Chiefs came to Victoria and won, and the Chiefs are probably still smarting from the last time they were in Victoria: the Cougars won 9-2. There is also a very good possibility that the Chiefs and the Cougars will meet in the first round of the playoffs. Yes folks, it's playoff preview time! The way the Cougar defence has been playing, it's hard to single out any one player for praise. But the steady play of Tim Williams has to be mentioned. "Stumpy" is not flashy, and is not that noticeable out there, but he gets the job done, and gets it done well. Every hockey club has a certain number of veteran leaders. But to be really successful, a good group of rookies is also a necessity. Two rookies who are having a great season with the Cougars are Don Cairns and Jim Gustafson. Cairns is a Calgary native who gives 110% every game, and is also one of the league's best body-checkers. Cairns notched his 30th goal of the season last Saturday and has 33 assists. Gustafson has looked impressive since the first day he checked in from Kenora, Ontario, wearing a CCCP hockey jersey. His style of play resembles that of the Europeans, and is one of the reasons he's often referred to as "Yakishev". With 41 goals, and 51 assists, he's definitely one of the league's top

Salmon-Fishing Returns Still Holding Up Locally

Fishermen around the southern end of Vancouver Island won't have to go far afield this weekend to enjoy good odds of catching a salmon.

Out Sooke way, Paul Paquin topped local fishing talent with a 1612 pound chinook taken on a hootchie near Otter Point last Sunday, the same day Jimmy Chow landed a 15:08-pounder on minnow in the vicinity of Secretary Island.

Most of the returns, which have weighed at least five pounds, were taken on gear trolled right near the bottom. Herb Knight has landed the first Columbia River chinook to turn up this season. His 17-pounder was taken at noon Wednesday at Beechey Head on strip, two pounds of lead and Waters off the Head also yielded a 22½-pounder to Bob Bentley on Sunday evening. He was fishing with strip, 130 feet of line and 10 pounds of weight on a downrigger. Large numbers of herring in the area right now might ac-

The few fishermen who have tried their luck at Pedder Bay are coming back with chinooks in the five to eight pound range. Most success has been noted by working very deep

Fairly good success has been reported in the vicinity of Fiddle Reef with up-to-15-pounders being boated on deeplytrolled strip. Returns have dropped off at Deep Cove with only the odd

Green and white flashtails are producing chinooks up to nine pounds near Five Fingers and the whole Nanaimo wa-terfront is loaded with blues.

Dock fishermen in Campbell River are still picking up chinooks up to 10 pounds but no blues or coho have yet shown up. Most of the ardent fishermen in this area are travelling to Port Hardy, where fantastic catches of blues and chinooks to 30 pounds are reported. * *

Steelheading on the Island ranges from dismal to good at various locations

The San Juan River-Harris Creek area seems to be ex periencing the worse season in decades and the Salmon and Gold Rivers are still poor. On the other side of the coin, Herman Mayea seems to be striking it lucky in the Cowichan (he won't say where). On Thursday morning he pulled in an eight and a 10 pounder and on Wednesday came home with two beauties that tipped the scales at 18:03 and 14:12.

A group from Vancouver averaged two fish each while fishing the Nanaimo River last weekend and the Stamp has a fresh run of bright fish in the six-to-seven pound bracket.

Other fairly good reports were received on the Puntledge. Campbell and Quinsam rivers. * *

NIBBLES: Al Merfield of Port Alberni deserves top marks for sheer "guts"... He flew a hang-glider off the top of the 5,300-toot Cokely Ridge last Sunday and landed safely near the Mt. Arrowsmith ski area lodge, which is about 3,000 feet in elevation... The distance covered is a little over one wild with preparent trees and elife in between mile, with numerous trees and cliffs in between Five-year-old Dean Ayers of Cowichan Station celebrated his birthday in grand style at the weekend by eatching a seven pound steelhead in the Koksilah River on his new rod and reel . . . He was fishing with his father. Bill, who didn't have to give much assistance in landing the fish . . . Some Corky lures, donated by Bucky Kennett to go with the birth-day present, were responsible for catching the fish.

The appearance of calculators in elementary school maths classes is causing educators a great deal of concern. First of all, don't let your kids lay a guilt trip on you with "Hey Mom, everyone in my class has a calculator, why can't I have one?" The truth is that in many cases truth is that in many cases, they may not be allowed in class. Experiments are now in progress to decide if and when they should be encouraged for students and on what basis. Most educators believe that a calculator can only add, subtract, multiply and divide. There is NO evidence that this device is even useful with younger children.

Educators are also attempting to determine what is the lowest-priced calculator that can be used to a good advan-tage. There is some talk of a calculator with a price tag of $9.95 coming on the market this fall. The question will be:

Will it be reliable enough?

The more complicated a calculator is, the higher the price. These complicated ver13 and up. Pressing a few keys will perform many of the slide rule operations or produce the data contained in many tables. The calculator can also produce results that were once difficult to obtain.

MIND BOGGLING

To be reasonably flexible, a mini calculator should have these basic features: separate add, subtract, multiply and divide keys; a floating decimal; a per cent key; an automatic constant; and a display that shows at least eight digits. Some have six digits, some 10 or 12, but experts agree that for everyday calculations you should have a readable eight digit display. If you want more, the sky is

For instance, a very unhappy woman wrote telling me she had such a terrible fear of dirt and germs that if anyone came into her house, the minute he or she left, she started scrubbing everything the person could possibly have touched. Very interesting to me was her statement that when she went to her sister's house or to a hotel, she seemed to lose the great fear of germs. Per-haps she did not feel so responsible for that particular house; at any rate, in someone else's home, she behaved herself fairly well. # PM Calls for Global Ethic passioned call for action of wealth between industrial and developing nations was made Thursday by Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau before the upper crust of London society.

"We know in our hearts what has to be done even if minds the way it can be done," he said following a luncheon given in his honor by the city's Lord Mayor.

About 300 formally-clad people, mainly local political and business figures, listened as Trudeal called for global co-operation in reaching an ethic "that abhors the present im-balance in the basic human condition.

"The role of leadership today is to encourage the embrace of a global ethic," the prime minister said during his speech in the opulent surroundings of the Lord Mayor's official residence. Demands by less-developed nations for restructured trade and financial relations were well thought out, meriting a cohesive, well-prepared response from industrial nations.

"But we should be very wrong, and doing ourselves and our children a great dis-service, if we regarded this process as an adversary one. We would be foolish as well, for solutions are not beyond our reach.

21 Shots Fired In Gun Battle

VANCOUVER (CP) - An RCMP constable told a B.C. supreme court jury Thursday police fired between 21 and 31 shots in a running gun battle with three escaped prisoners on Vancouver Island last Nov.

The three, Richard Dale Beeman, Robert Moyse and Claire Daniel Wilson, are charged with attempting to murder Deputy Sheriff Gilbert Perry, RCMP Const. Paul Cloutier and retired Anglican priest Ben Dixon. They are also charged with harming Deputy Sheriff Jer-rold Ockey with intent to wound and of keeping Dixon's wife under forcible seizure.

The three are alleged to have broken out of a plane at Cassidy Airport near Nanaimo while being returned to the B.C. penitentiary from Nanaimo jail.

The crown alleges the three escaped in Deputy Sheriff Perry's car, abandoned it in bushes, entered the Dixon farm house and held the oc-cupants at gunpoint before escaping in the farmer's car.

Const. Cloutier testified he and Const. Wayne Povey chased a car containing three persons along the Island Highway at high speed Nov. 28.
"I saw a head appear out of a side window of the car then there was a flash of fire and I heard the sounds of pellets hitting the windshields of our vehicle," Const. Cloutier said. 'Quite a few more shots were fired from the car we were The car then made a U-turn and stopped, Const. Cloutier said.

"I got out and fired three rounds then they turned rounds then they turned around and took off."

The chase continued down a winding road at speeds up to 70 miles an hour before the car turned into a private driveway, where three men were captured Const. Cloutier said.

He said his police car could not be driven from the cap-ture scene because of the number of bullet holes in it.

Const. Povey, testified that during the chase he emptied his own .38 service revolver at the fleeing car, fired two shots from Const. Cloutier's revolver, then fired a 12-gauge shotgun six or seven

WASHINGTON (WP) The badly ailing auto industry and the Ford administration agreed Wednesday that the best way to improve fuel mileage in U.S. cars is to leave the driving to Detroit, with no mandatory goals or timetables imposed by

In addition, the auto industry insisted in testimony before a Senate Commerce subcommittee that its promise to President Ford to produce cars that average 45 per cent better gas mileage by 1980 might be in jeopardy if clear air standards are not frozen president wants.

Neither of those positions sat well with the two senators chairing the hearing, John Tunney, (D-Calif.) and Ernest Hollings, (D-S.C.). The sub-committee is considering two bills that would require the automakers to produce more fuel-efficient cars much as they were required earlier to lower exhaust emissions and install safety equipment.

"You have the secretary of threatening weeks ago to go to war to pro-tect our fuel supplies," said Tunney. "I can't understand why there is so little reluc-tance to threaten war in the Middle East and so much rethey have to produce a fuel-efficient car."

A General Motors executive told the day-long hearing the industry's commitment will not reduce gasoline consump-tion much in the next five to eight years, because once higher mileage cars begin to be produced, it will take time for them to begin making up a significant proportion of the vehicles on the road.

Sow Inside for Early Tomatoes

The hope of getting an early crop of vine-ripened tomatoes outdoors can be realized by sowing a few seeds indoors at the middle of March.

The variety chosen must be capable of making strong early growth which produces early flowers and therefore sets early fruits.

Through the years, we have grown many varieties, always choosing them with the aim of early ripening, for we realized this was the greatest need for home gardeners in this area. With our normally sunny and dry summers the general conditions are good for outdoor tomato ripening but with late varieties, September ripening is too frequently shorteneed by frost during the first 10 days of the month.

One of the most satisfying vaireties in all home gardeners' opinions was Meteor, but seed of this is no longer

Today our recommendations are Early Fireball and Coldset. Fireball is a fair-ly old bush or determinate variety bearing ripe fruits be-ginning in August.

Coldset is newer, producing ripe fruits by the end of July in any year when summer growth is not delayed like it was last year.

In spite of the delaying ac-tion of a cool May and June, we had a tremendous crop ripen on the Coldset plants with everything safely gath-ered before frost. There were scarcely enough green tomatoes left to make our favorite

Coldset is a bush tomato variety which is capable of growing outdoors while the weather is still cool — not frostproof but when set out-doors about the third week in May, the plants should make progress.

The name Coldset indicates the plant's ability to set fruits under cool conditions. The

for an extra few hours.

This weekend, find the seed, and sow a few around the edge of a four-inch pot of sandy compost. Sow 12 seeds if you want six plants. Germinate them on a warm shelf indoors. As soon as the seeds sprout, put the pot into good light without a cover.

Growth must be steady, slow, and sure, to produce prevent spindling growth.

As soon as the irst true leaves show (eight to 10 days after sprouting), lift the see-dlings out carefully and pot each one separately into a three-inch pot of sandy com-

Have the soil barely damp; don't give any fertilizer; and don't have too high a temper-ature for the young plants. They can be a little cooler at night than their daytime growing temperature.

During April each plant can go into a six-inch pot of soil where it will slowly grow to size for planting out in May. Put the pots outdoors after May first whenever a cold wind is not blowing, and bring into an unheated cool spot such as a porch at night.

Flower buds should be seen at planting out time, an in-dication of those July ripening

Appeal Possible On Ganges Sewage

The chairman of the Capital Regional Board said Thursday he favors appealing a decision by the provincial Pollution Control Board which has blocked a proposed sewage disposal system for Ganges. Jim Campbell said the re-gional board's plan may have been short of ideal but the effect of its rejection is that Staff Nearby During Theft

Victoria police are investigating the theft of $216 cash and $73 cheques from Imperial Optical Ltd., 817 Fort Thursday afternoon.

A police report said the theft was discovered by employees at 2:30 p.m. and believe it occurred between 1:45

The money was in a cash tray in an unlocked door behind the reception counter. Employees were working in a back room at the time

Acting manager Norman Wacker told police the cash door was not locked because it would have meant more work for employees opening and closing it.

TAKE NOTICE that Eric Butler Businessman, of 7487 West Coast Road, R.R. No. 2. Sooke, B.C. intends to apply for a lease of a portion of Lot 225, Sooke District, said portion being described as lying 25 feet on either side of a line commencing at a point at the high watermark distant 661 feet from the most northwesterly corner of Lot 225, thence on a bearing south $3° E. a distance of 180 feet. The purpose for which the disposition is required is for the erection, construction and maintenance of a breakwater.

with pollution from the Salt Spring Island community.

The plan called for a collection system to serve about 240 property owners in Ganges, about 240 property owners in Ganges, secondary system to serve about 240 property owners in Ganges, secondary treatment of the sewage and then discharge from an outfall into Ganges Harbor.

The region originally won approval for the system from the Pollution Control Branch but that decision was appealed by environmentalists to the senior Pollution Control Board.

Board.

The board held a public hearing in Ganges last September at which the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society argued the harbor waters could not adequately disperse the sewage effluent. In its decision Thursday, the board in effects take on the tough job on a full-time basis. Sharp said Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet is the acting day, the board, in effect, agreed with SPEC.

Both SPEC and the board noted Ganges harbor involves shallow and confined waters.. Campbell said discharging sewage away from the long and narrow inelt constitutes a major problem.

The regional board can appeal the pollution control board's ruling to the cabinet or the B.C. Supreme Court. A decision on whether to appeal will be debated by regional directors, likely at their next meeting.

The ten of clubs was re-turned to the board's ace, after which declarer unthinkingly led a trump and finessed his queen, losing to West's king. West needed no further advantage: he played back a low diamond, which

East ruffed with his remaining trump, the nine-spot. Declarer overruffed with the

At this point West's ten of trumps had become promoted into the setting trick, for he had the doubleton 10-3 remaining behind declarer's A-8-7-4.

Declarer was wrong when he finessed his queen of trumps at trick four. West had opened the bidding in first position. And, as declarer viewed his hand and dummy's, West just about had to have the king of trumps as part of his opening bid.

At trick four declarer should have a supposed the trumps.

At trick four declarer should have spurned the trump finesse; and, instead, should have played the ace of trumps, and then followed up by leading the trump queen. West would win the trick with his king, as East's last trump fell. When declarer next regained the lead, he would cash his jack of trumps, picking up West's ten-spot. Thus he would fulfill his contract, losing one diamond, the ruff of a diamond, and the trump queen.

When the deal was re-played, everything was the same as at the original table, except that the South declarer realized that he had a guaranrealized that he had a guaranteed contract by conceding a trick to the king of trumps. He did not finesse, playing instead the ace of trumps, and following up by leading the jack to West's king. In so doing, he demonstrated the technique that separates the technique that separates the men from the boys — and winners from losers.

One factor in the selling was a private agricultural statistician's report that he acreage into corn and soy-beans this year than last year. The United States government also expects a higher figure and its estimate will be available late Monday.

Western Community Steps Lightly

By DON VIPOND Times Staff

When it comes to planning the future of a community -both residents and planners are reluctant to be first at

That was the most obvious fact emerging from a meeting at Belmont-Fisher high school Thursday night, attended by about 200 residents of Col-wood, Langford and Metchogather opinions from the audience before preparing preliminary proposals for a community plan. But the wary audience wanted to know what the planners had in mind. planners had in mind.

Each side collected a few thoughts to chew on.

The meeting was called by the Capital Regional Board as the first step in an exercise expected to take at least nine months and give residents ample opportunity to make plain what they want and don't want around them in the

The end result will be a community plan for the so-called "western community," Regional planner Peter Hammer today defined a community plan as a strategy which designates future use of the land, how it will be ser-viced with transport, water, sewerage and power and how these will be paid for.

Community plans will be prepared for all parts of the Capital district over the next year or two.

For a plan to stand up in the future requires a contribu-tion from residents, Hammer told the audience. Colwood, Langford and Metchosin, with a current population of about 20,000 and covering 90 square miles, have been earmarked for potential urban development on the recently approved overall regional plan.

The population is expected to climb from 20,000 to about 60,000 by 1996.

With large parts of the Saanich Peninsula included in the agricultural land reserve and the same holding true for much of Metchosin, the plan-ners see a population shift af-fecting Colwood and Langford particularly.

Hammer said the idea is to develop a sort of satellite core in a way which doesn't destroy the character and natural environment of the area. The community could be largely self-contained in terms of job opportunities, shopping centres and major services, he suggested. One requirement will be good transportation and there has been some suggestion from the provincial government that a rapid transit link between the western commu-nity and the Victoria core will be developed, possibly by rail.

Among changes needed is an updating of zoning regula-more than that in 1973 and a mate, said Doug Spaeth, a planning consultant.

But there is an argency to get on with planning because already there are growing pains, with traffic congestion and some loss in the character of the community which brought residents there in the first place.

Spaeth said there will inevi-tably be different ideas and concerns among residents so the idea is to end up with a complete plan in about nine months while giving fair consideration to alternatives sideration to along the way.

The first phase in the planning process is to define the basic directions of growth and the amount to be permitted. Detailing plans will come later, the audience was told.

To keep contact with the community as plans progress, the regional board intends opening a drop-in office where people can come to look at maps and charts and get the questions answered. That of-fice isn't likely to be open for a month or two.

Meanwhile and later, residents can submit ideas to their directors on the regional ard, Dick Emery for Colwood, Earl Pallister for Lang-ford and Ken Rainey for Met-chosin or through the advisoup in each area.

Further public will also be held.

Among the sort of questions residents need to weigh: a program of urban parks how many, how big and where? cial development go?

How important is rapid transit, bearing in mind such a system can cost $1 million a mile or more?

While most of the audience just listened, some of their dislikes did surface.

Several spoke out against a proposed shifting of oil tanks now located on Victoria's Inner Harbor to a 20-acre site near the west side of Esquimalt Harbor. That move is currently in the hands of the Department of National Defence, which owns the land.

Others said outfalls to carry sewage into Juan de Fuca Strait were "prehistoric" and

Among the few suggestions which did come forth: taking a look at the feasibility of a road link running under Esquimalt Harbor.

TRIO OF THINKERS pondering comment at western community planning meeting are regional directors Dick Emery of Colwood, Earl Pallister of sin. Standing is planning consultant Doug Spaeth. Meeting, first of a series, drew 200 to Belmont-Fisher high school Thursday night. (Don

The conditioning calls for self-discipline of a sort that can be very difficult to maintain. You can, for example, get angry if your highway rights are breached by some dolt who should never have been granted a licence but on been granted a licence, but on influence your driving.

The attitude that such firmly defensive tactics encourages isn't based on timicity. The over-timid driver is only less a creator of highway hazard than the over-aggressive. It is rather a fixed belief that good driving consists of getting to where you're going as smoothly and safely as possi-

The point is that they occur, which brings us back to Mister Asleep - at-the-Switch who ran the red light — may a police car be handy if he ever pulls that bonehead caper again!

PATTY HEARST IN ALBERTA?

CALGARY (CP) - RCMP and Calgary city police were investigating today a report that fugitive American newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was seen at Strathmore, Alta., 20 miles east of here, early in the morning

An RCMP spokesman in Calgary said a call from Strathmore on an RCMP Zenith telephone number said a woman who appeared to be Miss Hearst and two other persons were heading westbound near the Trans-Canada Highway at Strathmore in a late model green van bearing Minnesota licence plates.

Miss Hearst, 21, was kidnapped from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment Feb. 4, 1974, by the Symbionese Libera-tion Army. Several months later she renounced her family and said she was joining the revolutionary army.

The U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation was check ing reports that she was at a Pennsylvania farm last summer and fall with fellow SLA members William and Emily

The three were believed to be the only group of SLA members not involved in a gunbattle with Los Angeles police last summer which left several SLA members dead.

A Calgary police spokesman said officers are "treating seriously" the report of Miss Hearst's presence in Alberta. Although no special operations were being considered by police, units in Calgary and on surrounding highways have been advised to look for the van.

The SLA has been known to use stolen vans in the past

Alf's Half-Million Dollar Job-Without-a-Job

If you wish to know the clumsiness of this NDP government, with all its good intentions, you must understand the situation of Alf Nunweiler. If this party somehow manages to commit suicide in only one term, it will be due to such bland carelessness.

Alf Nunweiler is the former CNR train dispatcher who on June 26 last year was named minister-without-portfolio in the Barrett government. He is 43, a former alderman and school trustee in Prince

"Minister-withoutportfolio," of course, is one of the accepted amusements of parliamentary democracy. It means a job-without-a-job. A minister-without-portfolio is appointed for all the wrong reasons: to quieten an obstreperous backbencher whose demands on cabinet recognition have become unanswerable; a sop to certain interests: a carrot to dangle

hopes someday to earn a real

The NDP used to heap derisive abuse on Social Credit for tolerating ministers-without-portfolio: cabinet ministers who had no work to do. But, swallowing the hypocrisy with a straight face the Barrett government did the very same thing to Alf Nunweiler — purely to satisfy geographical demands. The northern half of the province was Highways Minister Graham Lea, from Prince Ru-pert. Nunweiler was knighted to give Prince George a voice.

That was less than a year ago. The estimates for the fis cal year ending March 31, 1976, are not out and they show the following astonishing array under "Minister with-out Portfolio."

In Victoria, there is the minister. No longer a lowly backbencher at a paltry $24,000, but a cabinet minister at $48,000. An executive assistant, at $19,465. Such expected things as a secretary at $10,885, a "clerk-stenographer 4" at $10,224 and a "clerk-stenographer 3" at $9,732.

But wait. Here's a further entry. Mr. Nunweiler has opened an office in Prince George also. The estimates his staff (or expected

You want more? How about Printing and Publications, $25,000? Or Advertising, $5,000? To top it all off, in case someone has missed some high-priced expertise somewhere, there is a final don't-be-half-safe item: "Consulting Fees and Expenses,'

In all, for one year's play or a Minister-without-Portfolio, a nice round total of $402,657. If Davey Barrett is the Three Billion Dollar Man, lonely Alf Nunweiler, ignored and unloved, has boondoggled bassy officials here, the Cam-

Dollar Job-without-a-job.

All this would be hilarious if it were monopoly money. You a sometimes get the impression

Mr. Nunweiler, as mentioned, was elevated last June. In less than a month, he had found his first executive assistant in the north. Stephen Wood, a Prince George law-yer. On Oct. 1, he found his Victoria executive assistant, Sharon Simons, formerly an aide to the Saskatchewan minister of agriculture. Her salary at that time was announced as $17,628. In the estimates, it is $19,465. That, she explains, is just the normal annual increase.

Derry MacDonnell, a Prince George reporter, was hired in tant" at an announced $15,384. He, apparently, will fill the "Public Liaison Officer" slot. Those three fancy titles, says Ms. Simons, are the only ones

ment. "When they come," said one businessman of the insur-

Now, there are two possibil-ities here. One is that Af Nunweiler has the most swo-len, grandiose ambitions since Napoleon, and that he actually plans to build that $402,657 bureaucracy to disguise the fact he has no clear duties other than to dabble in the "northern affairs" segment of the highways department, the Bennett was in his Some suspect that Mr. Bar-rett, in his risky prediction that his revenues will exactly balance his expenditures for the coming year, has purpose-ly padded his budget with wild items that he has no intention of spending money on.

If so, Mr. Nunweiler is being played for a fool. Either way, he does not come out looking very bright. Mr. Nunweiler, advertising for more experts than he has chairs, is stuck with that $402,657. To justify his existence, he has to spend it. If he doesn't, he comes across as a straw man

As mentioned before, if this rowd of enthusiastic amateurs manages to let Social Credit back into power after only one short term out, it will be because the NDP's casual disregard for financial reality and how most people

I was restored only after earnest maternal assurances that it was a deed done without malice or intent and didn't matter anyhow because it was only a chicken.

My bag includes flies, worms, but-terflies, rabbits, birds, fish, gnats, cockroaches, ants, lobsters, crabs, a snake, a rat, Japanese beetles thrips, slugs, a turtle, wasps, bees, lightning bugs, ticks, caterpillars and sundry

As a lifelong dispenser of death to living things, I have been very small shakes, as this shabby catalogue attests. I have not personally killed a human, although there was a time from 1943 to 1945 when I thirsted to do so.

In an advanced economy, of course, one pays others to kill for him, and here my assault on life has been impressive. Vast sums have been spent, sometimes happily, sometimes grudg-ingly, to undo life in steers, calves, lambs, chickens, turkeys, ducks, shrimp, fish, human inhabitants of alien countries, and insects, rodents and bacteria both at home and abroad.

For a long time I helped to pay a hangman who killed people in my own community and I still gladly help to pay policemen who, I assume, are prepared to. In brief, I have been a lifelong, active and sometimes enthusiastic enemy length for the purpose of boasting. To the contrary. The performance record cited here is set down because it is so ordinary, so undifferent from that of almost everybody else.

Daily carnage is so casually accept-

it centres not on the propriety of this commonplace dispensing of death, but on which specific forms of life deserve to be exempted from the kill list.

Thus, the "Right-to-Live" movement is working to have human fetuses placed on the exempt list and the people who are upset about the army's big blackbird kill in Kentucky want starlings, grackles and red-winged blackbirds exempted. You can be on the blackbirds' side without having to be or fetuses, and you can be a Right-to-Lifer and still support the blackbird kill, because neither faction is so purely dedicated to the sanctity of life that it won't concede the fitness of killing the kinds of life that don't interest it very

There are at least 12 widely accepted reasons for killing, although some are more controversial than others. The most hotly debated are whether it is all right to kill humans (1) for criminal justice and (2) for human uplift, as guerrilla terrorists, for example, kill them to build what the killers believe will be a better world for mankind.

Killing for self-preservation is gener ally approved and in the case of war,

In a world as machine-ridden as ours, goes the argument, a certain per-centage of people are bound to be killed in accidents, and if you have the bad luck to be caught in one you should not expect anyone to have a bad conscience about it because it was a statistical inevitability.

All five reasons, of course, also. apply to life other than the human. Killing my chicken was permissible as thus serving justice, among other good causes. Mosquitoes are killed for human uplift.— to make Panama a better place for humanity.

Killing of beasts is all right for food, although not all beasts in all countries.

Lassie might be safe in starving America, but not in China, and Bossie might be safe in India, but not in America. Killing for sport is okay, although again we have cultural differences. Hemingway could be admired in America while slaughtering wild beasts in Africa, but not while applauding the killing of a bull in the ring at Madrid. Killing big fish is a token of manhood and is thought to promote health and mental stability.

Killing for knowledge is more con-troversial, but widely approved. Re-member dissecting the frog in high-school biology? Killing for profit, okay, as the whales and furbearing beasts

Killing for mercy is so widely ap-proved in the case of stricken animals that one wonders why it is so abhorred in the human instance. Deer hunting is commonly justified as an act of mercy transcending pure sport, on grounds that it thins out herds and prevents starvation. Humans have managed to exempt themselves from this solution to the starvation problem. So far.

And, of course, very few quibble about the killing of pests (except blackbirds) which eat the garden and mangle the roses. Finally, it is all right to kill forms of life that are too trival to matter, so we squash the bug on the screen simply because it is there.

A long exposition of the obvious here? Yes indeed, Man lives, as the animal kingdom does, by killing, and when he talks about the sancity of life he doesn't really mean life at all, but New York Times

CLARENCE DARROW FOR THE DEFENCE—Henry Fonda will appear in an outstanding one-man play based on the life of famed United States lawyer, Clarence Darrow, to be seen on Monday at 7 p.m. on Channel 9. A lifelong defendant of individual rights, Darrow specialized in "impossible cases." He also fought the death penalty, defending 104 individuals accused of capital crimes without losing a single client. In accordance with Fonda's wishes, the play was taped before a live audience with only a single intermission in the 90-minute performance, in order to preserve the feeling of a theatrical event.

Exec-utive producer Paul Rauch says, "If our show is a hit you can count on seeing a big parade of one-hour daytime serials."

Leaving Rauch and his col-leagues to decide what changes ought to be made be-fore another episode of An-other World was committed to tape, I went off in search of Jacqueline Courtney, who has been playing "Alice" since the show premiered in 1964.

She had a mental breakdown this past summer when her husband went to prison She's basically me I prison She's basically me I prison. She's basically me. I still haven't quite grown up yet. I'm 28. I'm very romantic and emotional and haven't much head for the business end of the business. I've been married for five years to a medical student. I have a little girl of four. Miracle at Morgan's Creek Miracle at Morgan's Creek (xxxx), on 11 at noon. A perceptive, deft and still entertaining 1944 comedy with a theme that would not have been allowed by the censors at the time if the director, Preston Sturges had treated it with solemnity. The story concerns a small-town girl who gets drunk and becomes pregnant, thanks to a variety of obliging GIs. The problem arises when the girl can't remember which soldier is the member which soldier is the father and the "miracle" referred to in the title concerns the way in which the problem is solved. An excellent script is beautifully handled by Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Diana Lynn and William Demarest.

I Never Sang for My Father (xxxx), on 8 at 12:45. Profoundly moving performances by Gene Hackman and Mel-vyn Douglas highlight this ex-cellent 1970 film rendering of Robert Anderson's acclaimed tionships surrounding an 80year-old father, a former mayor of a Long Island su-burb who is tyrannically obsessed with concepts of strength and pride.

The Angel Wore Red (xx), on 5 at 2:30. A serious 1960 at-tempt to mount a love story against the turmoil of the Spanish Civil War which is ultimately disappointing despite a literate script and earnest performances by Dick Bo-garde and Ava Gardner. Perhaps the heavy accent on re-ligious overtones (Bogarde plays a Catholic priest who gives up his beliefs) is the film's weakest point.

Sunrise at Campobello (xxxx), on 11 at 8. An excellent 1960 film rendering of the heart-warming, inspiring and acclaimed Broadway play about Franklin Roosevelt's fight against polio in 1921. Ralph Bellamy repeats his fine stage performance as Roosevelt with Greer Garson equally effective as his wife.

Love Story (xx), on 8 at 8:30. This is the 1970 box-of-fice bonanza starring Ali Mac-Graw and Ryan O'Neal as the star-crossed lovers who meet, follial to the star-crossed lovers who meet, fall in love, marry and strug-gle to make it financially, only to be faced with the fact that the wife is dying. It's high-gloss histrionics all the way, so have the tissue box close-by.

The Law, on 5 at 9. Based on last season's television movie of the same name, this follow-up focusses on a criminal attorney as he challenges the legal system in the course of defending his clients. In this episode, he represents a divorcee who inflicts a minor stab wound on her ex-husband and is charged with murder when he unexpectedly dies. Cast includes Judd Hirsch, Fiona Guinness and Alex Ni-

Kid Rodelo (xx), on 7 at 10:45. A routine, 1966 western, made in Spain and starring Don Murray, Janet Leigh and Broderick Crawford.

The Bishop's Wife (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Cary Grant, Loretta Young, David Niven and Monty Woolley star in this amusing 1947 comedy-fantasy about a dapper angel who comes down to earth to try and help with the social and domestic problems of a young clergyman.

The Chalk Garden (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. A sensitive, tender drama about a governess who tries to provide the love her charge, a disturbed 16-year-old girl, needs so badly. Filmed in the U.K. in 1964 with excellent performances by Deborah Kerr, Hayley Mills, John Mills and Dame Edith Evans. Superior fare for discriminating audi-film, adapted from W. H. Hudson's famous 1904 novel about Rima/a mysterious, be-witching nature girl who lives in the jungles of Venezuela, and of a young man who falls in love with her. Audrey Hep-burn and John Kerr star.

The Journey (xx), on 8 at midnight. A mediocre script hinders an excellent cast (Deborah Kerr, Yul Brynnér and Jason Robards Jr.) in this 1959 drama about a group of peo-ple fleeing Budapest during the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

Lady on a Train (xxx), on 7 at 12:45. A fairly engrossing 1945 mystery about a young woman who witnesses a murder as she looks out a train window, but no one will believe her. Cast includes Deanna Durbin and Ralph Bellamy.

The Kentuckian (xxx), on 6 at 2:10. Rugged action, romance and an ample amount of comedy highlights this 1955 western adventure starring Burt Lancaster as a two-fisted frontiersman in the early 1800s.

Desert Sands (x), on 8 at 2:40. Routine 1955 Foreign Legion adventure starring Ralph Meeker and Marla English.

(In a recent interview, Stevenson stated that actor Harry Morgan would be added to the regular cast as the new commander; but judging from the information received on the content of tonight's episode, this seems to have changed.) ## ... Getting To Know Him

Stephen Leacock (1869-1944) was much more than a humorist. He wrote Literay Lapses and Nonsense Novels, but he also wrote Last Leaves, in the twilight of his life. He was a humanist and a philosopher. In his portrayal hilosopher. In his portrayal, Christopher Plummer more than hints at Leacock's complexity, his seriousness and his sadness, as well as his unique sense of humor.
